

Biochemistry Graduate Program at Virginia Tech Video Transcript

“Come join us at the historic campus of Virginia Tech in the beautiful mountains of southwestern Virginia at the home of the Hokie Nation to participate in cutting-edge research with world-class researchers who support and mentor their students to give them the tools, skills, opportunities and the support they need to become the next generation of world-class scientists.

We are diverse in background as well as research interests. We're friends and family as well as colleagues. We work hard and we play hard. We have a small college culture with the resources of a large university, and we'd love you to become part of us. So, come join us and help make a difference.”
